

What we decide to eat
is a personal choice, which makes us neither better nor worse than those who make different choices from us.

We must eat to live and many of us have the privilege and opportunity to choose what and how.

That is also why,
when we take a position on these issues, it is important to be well informed.

And let us always remember that those who breed or cultivate for us are those who make our lives easier, because they are in charge of making available what is needed to feed billions of people around the world ...
